SAYS BILBO IS PERSONAL AND POLITICAL FRIEND.

Letters Made Public in Which Senator Vardaman Repudiates the Brewster Interview and Defines His Position.

Much has been made of a portion of the State press of an interview given out by Gov. Brewer, charging that Senator Vardaman "knew Bilbo to be a crook," but Senator Vardaman repudiates the insinuation, as will be seen by the following correspondence. Senator Vardaman has the courage of his convictions and always stands by his friends, and very naturally resented the charges made by Governor Brewer. The following correspondence explains itself:

"Washington, D. C., Sept. 15, 1914.

"Hon. Earl Brewer, Jackson, Miss.

"My Dear Gov. Brewer—I noticed an interview from you in which you are reported as saying: 'Senator Vardaman knows as well as I do that Bilbo is a crook, but he has not the nerve to come out and say so, as I have done.' Senator Vardaman fears that if Bilbo is elected governor he would go right after his position in the Senate, and while he fears to cross him in any way, he knows that Bilbo is a crook."

"I cannot believe that you expressed the sentiment imputed to you. Please let me know. Cordially and sincerely,

"(Signed.) JAMES K. VARDAMAN."

"Executive Department, Jackson, Miss., Sept. 17, 1914.

"Senator James K. Vardaman, Washington, D. C.

"Dear Senator—I am in receipt of your letter of the 15th and in reply will say I will be Washington next Monday and will see you in person. Yours truly,

"(Signed.) EARL BREWER."

"Washington, D. C., Sept. 30, 1914.

"Hon. Earl Brewer, Jackson, Miss.

"My Dear Gov. Brewer—Your favor of the 17th inst. replying to my letter of the 15th inst., in which you say, 'I will be in Washington next Monday and will see you in person,' has been received. I had the pleasure of seeing you 'in person' in the City of Washington and requested you to answer my letter of the 15th inst., in writing, which you promised to do. Your letter to answer my letter or interview, I should say no attention to this interview, but for the fact that our position as governor of the state might cause some people to give credence to your utterances where otherwise it would be ignored. To say that I was astonished when I read the interview is to express my feelings very mildly. It was so indelicate, so improper, and in violation of every idea of propriety, that I could not bring myself to believe that the governor of Mississippi would be guilty of it. In addition, to the inelicacy of the interview, it fails to contain a single truth so far as it refers to me. When you say that 'Senator Vardaman knows as well as I do that Bilbo is a crook,' you take a liberty which your sense of propriety ought to teach you is unwarranted. You know nothing of my opinion of Lieut. Gov. Bilbo. I have never expressed my opinion of him to you. And your assumption of the right to speak for me evinces both a lack of candor and utter disregard for all the amenities of intercourse between gentlemen.

"I do not know that Lieut. Gov. Bilbo is a crook. A great many unkindly and uncomplimentary things have been said of him by his enemies, but that is the misfortune of a great many men of prominence in Mississippi politics. If all the discreditable and disgraceful things that your enemies have said of you were taken as true, Gov. Bilbo would not suffer in comparison with you, even though he were as bad as you have pictured him. I do not think Gov. Bilbo is perfect by any means. None of us are. But I have as much faith in his integrity and patriotism and devotion to duty as my dear governor, as I have in the present occupant of the governor's office. Your statement that my lack of 'nerve' is the only reason that I do not join you in your effort to exterminate Bilbo is intended, probably, as a modest tribute to your own heroism. I have no doubt about your 'nerve.' But I submit that you are not altogether an impartial judge when it comes to estimating your own splendid courage. You express the opinion that I am afraid to oppose Bilbo because 'Bilbo might run against me for the Senate.' I do not believe you think that. If I have ever done anything in public or private life which justifies that estimate of me, I am not afraid of Bilbo or any other man defeating me for the senate. But I have no doubt that if you, Bilbo or any other aspiring politician in Mississippi should conclude that you could defeat me for the United States Senate and be elected to place yourself that you would run against me. And I want to assure you that I do not think that an unworthy ambition. The office of United States Senator is a great place. It is the goal of most men's ambition who aspire to any position of prominence. On the contrary, I rather commend you for it. And I want to assure you that if the times ever comes when the people of Mississippi would prefer Bilbo, you or any other man to me, that I would not throw anything in the way of expressing their preference. I would not have the senatorship unless it came to me as a free-will offering, an expression of confidence from the Democratic voters in Mississippi. I held the commission just in that way, and I shall regard it as a sacred trust and keep it until the people manifest a desire to take it from me. It is not the purchased article of a 'so-called caucus,' but rather a gift from the unpurchased and unpurchasable, independent, honest electors. And I would not hold it, I repeat, for one moment, if I did not believe that a majority of the people desire me to hold it.

"No, I am not trying to prevent anybody running against me for the Senate. The field is open, and all who will may enter. And I do not want anybody to vote against Gov. Bilbo or anyone else who aspires to the governorship because of the possibility of such person antagonizing, in the proper way, my political aspirations in the future. So, I hope you will give yourself no further concern along this line. If I deserve the office, the people will permit me to retain it. If I do not deserve it, then I ought not to retain it.

"No, as I have told you upon one or two former occasions, I have nothing whatever to do with yours and Lieut. Gov. Bilbo's quarrel. It is of no personal concern to me. I do not think it has any political significance other than a misunderstanding which has grown into a bitter feud between two prominent men. Being a personal matter, you gentlemen must settle it. I should like very much to be let alone. You have no authority to quote me on any question. I am amply able to take care of my own affairs in that regard. My duties in Washington are absorbing. I am doing my dead level best to properly perform the duties of the great office to which the good people of Mississippi have elected me. Bilbo, who is and has been for some time, my political and personal friend, has not called upon me for help in the contest with you, and you, who have never supported me, who have never been my political friend, and are not now my political friend, have no right to ask me for help.

"I want you to understand that I write this letter in no spirit of hostility or personal ill-will, as the governor of my state. In a humble way. I stand ready at all times to uphold your hand in the proper performance of your official duties. Personally my feelings are better taken in that spirit. But I do again most earnestly request you to leave me out of your personal and political quarrels. Cordially and sincerely,

"JAMES K. VARDAMAN."

Cotton Convention in New Orleans

Tuesday there assembled a representative body of business men and farmers of the South to thresh out what would be the best course to pursue in regards to the coming year.

The convention was decidedly divided on whether there should be no cotton planted next year. It looks good on paper to have a big demand for the cotton which has been raised this year, but long before it is time to plant the next cotton crop nine-tenths of the present crop will have bid farewell to the one who produced it.

The plan to reduce the acreage is all right, but to raise no cotton at all in the South is a question that would simply ruin the cotton industry of the South. The labor of any section is the most important feature and if the laborer can't get the work in one section he will be forced to seek it in another. With the labor all scattered and demoralized it would take years to have this country in a prosperous condition again.

CALL HIM UNCLE SAMSON

The Natchez Democrat is usually very fair, but it contained an unwarranted attack upon the Farmers' Union in its last issue. The editor must have been misled by some of the misinformation sent out from Fort Worth, otherwise we are at a loss to account for the following remarkable statement:

"With much complacency and sangfroid the Farmers' Union in session at Fort Worth, Texas, proposes that Uncle Sam take over the South's cotton crop, as if it were trifling matter of a few dollars. No doubt there were those present who have given the subject much thought, and men of sober, sound judgment and probity."

The National Convention of the Farmers Union which met at Fort Worth was not composed of a parcel of fools. The editor of the Democrat seems to admit that fact in the last sentence quoted above, though his first sentence is a complete contradiction. The Fort Worth Convention did not ask the government to take over the South's cotton crop, but it did ask the government to so legislate that the cotton producers themselves would have the means to handle the present situation. That is no more than the Jackson convention or the New Orleans convention will want to do.

How is this to be done? By making their warehouse receipts liquid assets the same as mercantile paper, and by providing a channel through which funds can be secured on these assets at a reasonable interest, especially in these distressing times.

The banks can be and should be this channel, but there should be a limit to the rate they can charge for interest. The government loans money to the banks at two per cent, and the banks loan it to the customers at six, eight and ten per cent. That's business. But when the cotton producers through their organized bodies ask the government to limit the rate of interest or loan direct or through other channels—that's populism.

The Farmers' Union does not ask the government to take over the cotton crop, but it does ask it to relieve the present distress. The government goes to the relief of the banks in times of stringency or panic. Is it any crime, or is it so awfully foolish, then to ask the government to come to the relief of the cotton producers in their distress?

The Praise That Comes From Thankful Yazoo City People

One kidney remedy has known merit.

Yazoo people rely upon it. That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Yazoo City testimony proves it reliable.

Leon Deano, grocer, 363 N. Main St., Yazoo City, says: "I had pains in my back and didn't know what caused the trouble. I kept getting worse. The kidney secretions were very painful in passage. One of the family got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for me at Taliaferro & Ijam's Drug Store, and I began taking them. It wasn't long before the pain in my back left and I felt better in every way."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Deano had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

This Looks Good.

For the first time in weeks vessels leaving for Europe Tuesday were laden with cotton and Tuesday's exports of 2,250 bales is the largest since the opening of the season. The climax in the grain movement was also reached when it was estimated that 1,000,000 bushels of wheat had been exported from New Orleans since Monday.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

The fact that the cotton that sold for the highest price in this section was ginned by us, is proof conclusive that gins operated by steam power obtain the best results.

In soliciting your patronage, we do so strictly on our merits, and not on sentiment.

We have made a close study of the ginning business, and we claim that we are in a position to gin your cotton so that you will get a big turn-out, and at the same time secure a smooth sample, so that you will be assured the highest market price.

We will pay you as much for your seed as any other bona fide buyer of seed will pay you, and we will sell you huls and meal as cheap as any other oil mill will sell them to you.

You may rest assured that any business entrusted to us will receive the very best of attention, but should you have cause for complaint, do not hesitate to advise us, for though we do our utmost in all matters, we may unintentionally make an error, which we will be only too pleased to correct when brought to our notice.

Hoping that conditions will soon improve and you will be enabled to market your crop at satisfactory prices, we are,

Yours very truly,
